Centennial groups celebrate together

BESSEMER — Three organizations are combining patriotic events Wednesday to celebrate 100 years of serving the Bessemer community.

Washington Elementary School, American Legion Post 27/American Legion Auxiliary Unit 27, and Bessemer Womens Club are each 100-years-old in 2019 and each will hold an event on Wednesday, Oct. 10 to celebrate a patriotic theme together at the Bessemer City Hall auditorium. The all-ages open house event is free and open to the public.

“Activists through the decades, these organizations strived to make positive changes to support the people of Bessemer and the Gogebic Range,” said Sue Abelman of the Bessemer Womens Club.

A 100 Letter Tribute will run from 1 to 8 p.m., she said. The three organizations are collaborating to send 100 letters to active duty servicemen and women and veterans of the U.S. Armed Forces as a fall activity. Letters will be written during the event to help meet the goal, she said.

Bessemer Area Schools students of art teacher Jen Werner, are contributing patriotic drawings to be included with the mailings, Abelman said. A 100 food items collection will be given to a local food pantry, she said.

There will also be Quilts of Valor exhibit organized by Sharlene Shaffer and Pauline Borgan.

Shaffer is a member of Northern Lights Quilt Guild and leads the Quilts of Valor effort in this area, Abelman said. Borgan, of Rhinelander, Wisconsin, is with the Pieced for Peace group and will be accepting donations for signature blocks to complete future quilts for veterans, she said.

“Both ladies are affiliated with the Quilts of Valor Foundation,” Abelman said. “The women will present two veterans with quilts.”

The first veteran, Charles Tirk, will receive a quilt at 1:30 p.m. He served in the U.S. Army during the Vietnam War from 1967 to 1970. He currently is the commander of the American Legion Post 27. The second veteran, Donna Frello, will be presented with a quilt at 6 p.m. She served in the U.S. Air Force from 1979 to 1995. She was stationed in South Korea, Germany, and stateside, and is the commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 3673 and is a member of American Legion Post 27.

Frello will join the choir of the Bessemer Area School District in singing the National Anthem, under the direction of Sandra Genisot.

The three organizations will also have displays highlighting service over the last century. Members of the groups will be available to elaborate and answer questions.

The American Legion Post 27/American Legion Auxiliary Unit 27 provided services and resources for veterans, Abelman said. The Bessemer Womens Club came together to support their community through activities that helped people of all ages and worked to effect social and civic changes, she said.

The Washington Elementary School educated many generations of students in Bessemer, she said. It was accomplished with quality instruction, administrative planning, and the dedication

GCC board addresses conflict

By TOM LAVENTURE
tlaventure@yourdailyglobe.com

IRONWOOD — At a special meeting Monday, the Gogebic Community College Board of Trustees corrected a procedural vote from a previous meeting to address a potential conflict of interest.

The board on Monday 5-0 approved a correction to a procedural issue related to the unanimous 7-0 procedural vote to approve a construction mediation agreement at the Sept. 24 regular meeting. Board members Eric Fitting and Robert Burchell, who had voted Sept. 24, obtained from voting Monday after declaring conflicts on interest.

The Sept. 24 action was to release $4,925 of the outstanding receivable as the terms of a mediation agreement to complete the 2019 construction home project with the GCC Construction Technology program and close the contract. The program contracts with individuals for construction of homes and other structures during the school year to provide the students with a realistic work experience.

Fitting, who didn't declare a conflict of interest at the Sept. 24 meeting, was the contracted party for the house that was the subject of the mediation agreement.

“I am a party to the contract,” Fitting said.

Burchell, who also voted at the Sept. 24 meeting, declared a conflict on Monday for being Fitting's father-in-law.

“My daughter is married to the party who has the contract,” he said.

John Lupino, board chair, said the special meeting was necessary. He said he was pleased with the outcome.

“I think we looked at the procedural issue and that was what we needed to do and we did,” Lupino said.

The Construction Technology program entered into a $32,925 contract with Fitting to provide the labor to build a home in the fall 2018. Fitting joined the board of trustees in January 2019 to complete a term of trustee who had resigned.

The mediation resulted in a

Bessemer council talks city hall accessibility

By KIM E. STROM

BESSEMER — Discussion at Monday's Bessemer city council meeting centered on the issue of whether the city is in compliance with the American with Disabilities Act with regard to the city hall.

Councilman Louis Miskovich provided several letters from residents who are disabled and cannot use most of the facilities at the building — including paying utility bills, voting and attending city meetings.

According to Miskovich, the city may be in compliance with state law, but not at the federal level, which he said trumps state law.

Trial date set for Ironwood man

BESSEMER — A trial date has been set in the case of an Ironwood man facing several sex crime charges.

Jeremy James Richards, 42, will stand trial on four counts of first degree criminal sexual conduct-personal injury and one count of assault with intent to do great bodily harm-strangulation. The four-day trial is scheduled to begin on Jan. 28.

Each of the criminal sexual conduct charges, the most serious he faces, carries a potential life sentence as the maximum punishment.

Richards is accused of assaulting an acquaintance at his house earlier this year, according to testimony presented at his preliminary hearing in Gogebic County District Court.

Trump defends decision to abandon Kurdish allies in Syria

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Donald Trump on Monday cast his decision to abandon Kurdish fighters in Syria as fulfilling a campaign promise to withdraw from “endless war” in the Middle East, even as Republican critics and others said he was sacrificing a U.S. ally and undermining American credibility.

Trump, in late afternoon remarks to reporters, appeared largely unconcerned at the prospect of Turkish forces attacking the Kurds, who include a faction he described as “natural enemies” of the Turks.

But I have told Turkey that if they do anything outside of what we would think is humane ... they could suffer the wrath of an extremely decimated economy,” Trump said.

IN THIS June 17 file photo, The Supreme Court is seen in Washington. Abortion rights, and protections for young immigrants and LGBT people top an election-year agenda for the Supreme Court. Its conservative majority will have ample opportunity to flex its muscle, testing Chief Justice John Roberts' attempts to keep the court clear of Washington partisan politics.

Court seems ready to require unanimous juries as term opens

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court began a potentially contentious election-year term Monday in seeming general agreement that juries in state criminal trials must be unanimous to convict a defendant.

The justices took up a quirk of constitutional law, a 47-year-old ruling that requires unanimity in federal, but not state trials. Earlier in the day, the court also wrestled with whether states must allow criminal defendants to plead insanity. The one minor surprise when the justices took the bench just after 10 o'clock was the absence of Justice Clarence Thomas. The 71-year-old Thomas was at home, likely with the flu, the court said.

Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg was in her customary seat to the left of Chief Justice John Roberts. The 86-year-old Ginsburg asked the first question in the insanity arguments.

Ginsburg was treated this summer for a tumor on her pancreas. Meeting for the first time in public since late June, the court opened a term that could reveal how far to the right and how fast the court's conservative majority will move, even as Roberts has made clear he wants to keep the court clear of Washington partisan politics. The court is beginning its second term with both of President Donald Trump's Supreme Court appointees, Justices Neil Gorsuch and Brett Kavanaugh, on board. The justices could be Even Trump's staunchest Republican congressional allies expressed outrage at the prospect of abandoning Syrian Kurds who had fought the Islamic State group with American arms and advice. It was the latest example of Trump's approach to foreign policy that critics condemn as impulsive, that he sometimes reverses and that frequently is untethered to the advice of his national security aides.

"A catastrophic mistake," said Rep. Liz Cheney of Wyoming, the No. 3 House Republican leader. "Shot in the arm to the bad guys," said Sen. Lindsey Graham of South Carolina. Trump said he understood criticism from fellow GOP leaders but disagreed. He said he could also name supporters, but he didn't.

Pentagon and State Department officials held out the possibility of persuading Turkey to abandon its expected invasion. U.S. officials said they had seen no indication that Turkey had begun a military operation by late Monday. Trump, in late afternoon remarks to reporters, appeared largely unconcerned at the prospect of Turkish forces attacking the Kurds, who include a faction he described as “natural enemies” of the Turks.

But I have told Turkey that if they do anything outside of what we would think is humane ... they could suffer the wrath of an extremely decimated economy,” Trump said. In recent weeks, the U.S. and Turkey had reached an apparent accommodation of Turkish concerns about the presence of Kurdish fighters, seen in Turkey as a threat. American and Turkish soldiers had been conducting joint patrols in a zone along the border. As part of that work, barriers designed to protect the Kurds were dismantled amid assurances that Turkey would not invade.

Graham said Turkey's NATO membership should be suspended if it attacks into northeastern Turkey, potentially annihilating Kurdish fighters who acted as a U.S. proxy army in a five-year fight to eliminate the Islamic State's so-called caliphate. Graham, who had talked Trump out of a withdrawal from Syria last December, said letting Turkey invade would be a mistake of historic proportion and would “lead to ISIS reemergence.”

FBI: Inmate is most prolific serial killer in US history

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — The inmate who claims to have killed more than 90 women across the country is now considered to be the most prolific serial killer in U.S. history, the Federal Bureau of Investigation said.

Samuel Little, who has been behind bars since 2012, told investigators last year that he was responsible for about 90 killings nationwide between 1970 and 2005. In a news release on Sunday, the FBI announced that federal crime analysts believe all of his confessions are credible, and officials have been able to verify 50 confessions so far.

Investigators also provided new information and details about five cases in Florida, Arkansas, Kentucky, Nevada and Louisiana. The 79-year-old Little is serving multiple life sentences in California. He says he strangled his 93 victims, nearly all of them women.

Some of his victims were on the margins of society. Many were originally deemed overdoses, or attributed to accidental or undetermined causes. Some bodies were never found.

The FBI provided 30 drawings of some of his victims — color portraits that were drawn by Little himself in prison. They are haunting portraits, mostly of black women. The agency also provided videos taken during prison interviews with Little. He described how he spoke about a woman he strangled in 1993 — and how he rolled her down a slope on a desolate road.

“I heard a secondary road noise and that meant she was still rolling,” he said. In another video, he described a victim in New Orleans. “She was pretty. Light colored, honey brown skin,” he said with a small smile. “She was tall for a woman. Beautiful shape. And, uh, friendly.”

It was 1982, and they met in a club. She left with him in his Lincoln, and they parked by a bayou.

“That's the only one that I ever killed by drowning,” he said.

Investigators around the country are still trying to piece together his confessions with unidentified remains and unsolved cases from decades past. In August, he pleaded guilty to murdering four women in Ohio. He was convicted in California of three slayings in 2013 and pleaded guilty to another killing last year in Texas.

Little, who often went by the name Samuel McDowell, grew up with his grandmother in Lorain, Ohio. He was described by investigators as a transient and former boxer who traveled the country preying on drug addicts, troubled women and others.

Mike Tyson takes a swing at MMA coverage

By DAN GELSTON
AP Sports Writer

Mike Tyson is ready to talk your ears off about MMA.

The former heavyweight champion is set to join the Professional Fighters League as host of the new series "Mike Tyson's New Fight Game: The PFL," which will debut this week on the league's YouTube channel and other digital platforms before the playoffs start Friday.

Tyson will conduct interviews with fighters, and musicians, entertainers and other famous fans of mixed martial arts. Tyson will be joined on "Fight Game" by co-host Sean O'Connell, PFL ESPN play-by-play announcer and PFL 2018 light heavyweight champion.

"We can take this to another dimension," Tyson told The Associated Press. "We can brand it the proper way. Give it the proper advertisement. We can take these fighters and publicize these fighters properly. We can take all the fighters from all over the planet, and all the techniques and all the disciplines and put them in one tournament and find out who really is the baddest (fighter) on the planet that ever lived."

The PFL is a tournament-based organization that kicks off the playoffs this week. PFL playoffs are held over three nights in October: Friday's fights are headlined by women's 155 pounds and welterweights; Oct. 17 features featherweights and lightweights; and Oct. 31 has light heavyweights and heavyweights. Each male fighter must fight twice and win twice that night to advance to the championship finals.

Tyson can add TV host to an entertainment tableau highlighted by a scene-stealing stint in "The Hangover." He voiced himself in an animated show on the Cartoon Network and even starred in a one-man show on Broadway. He hosted a podcast and founded his own cannabis company.

Tyson has long been an uncensored, unfiltered athlete who has unloaded quotes like this one on Evander Holyfield (whom he bit twice during their infamous 1997 fight): "I want your heart! I want to eat his children!" Or this one on his own persona: "I comes across as crass, a Neanderthal, a babbling idiot sometimes. I like to show you that person. I like that person. He makes you want to come and listen to me."

DNR's first round of sampling shows PFAS contamination at surface water sample sites

MADISON, Wis. — The Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources has received the first round of per- and polyfluoroalkyl substances (PFAS) surface water sampling results from the State Lab of Hygiene. Results show elevated levels of PFOS — one of the most widely used and studied PFAS chemicals — in Starkweather Creek in Madison and Silver Creek in Monroe County. Lower levels of contamination were found in three other state water bodies. The highest concentrations of detected compounds tended to occur downstream of known contaminated sites and in smaller streams with low flow.

PFAS are a group of human-made chemicals used for decades in numerous products, such as non-stick cookware, fast food wrappers, stain-resistant sprays and firefighting foam. These contaminants bioaccumulate in the food chain and have made their way into the environment through accidental spills of PFAS-containing materials, discharges of PFAS-containing wastewater to treatment plants and certain types of firefighting foams. According to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), exposure to some PFAS substances above certain levels may increase the risk of adverse health effects, such as thyroid disease, low birthweights and cancer.

The water samples were taken this summer and are part of a broader effort by the DNR to assess PFAS contamination in surface water across Wisconsin. Samples in the first round were taken from five waterbodies near known or suspected PFAS contamination sites. The testing sites include fire-fighting training grounds, areas near where PFAS was detected in drinking water wells, as well as two locations where elevated fish-tissue or wildlife blood levels were previously detected.

"The DNR will work with state and local public health officials, the city, the airport and Wisconsin Air National Guard to expand and accelerate the investigation at Truax and Dane County Regional Airport to address public concerns based on the results of this first sampling round," said DNR Environmental Management Division Administrator Darsi Foss. "We will continue to step up our efforts to investigate PFAS contamination in Dane County and across Wisconsin, and work with all our partners to address concerns that may arise."

Most test areas had three rounds of water sampling, and one of those rounds included fish sampling. The DNR will post the results from the first round of data on the department's PFAS website and update it with additional results when available. Due to significant processing and analyzing time required for fish tissue samples compared to water samples, the fish tissue sampling results are expected later this year.

Samples were analyzed for 36 PFAS compounds, including PFOS and PFOA, at the Wisconsin State Laboratory of Hygiene. Although initial analysis reveals not all the 36 PFAS compounds were detected, some of the compounds were detected at all locations.

Since EPA does not have a federal drinking water standard for these contaminants, like other states, Wisconsin is working to address this critical issue. The rulemaking process started with the Wisconsin Department of Health Services recommending a cumulative groundwater enforcement standard of 20 nanograms per liter (ng/L) or parts per trillion (ppt) for PFOA and PFOS.

The recommended standards will be enforceable once the rules are finalized. Wisconsin is currently developing groundwater, surface water and public drinking water standards for PFAS based on the DHS recommendations for groundwater standards given to the DNR in June.

Although dermal exposure (coming in contact with the water while wading, kayaking, etc.) where PFAS is present is not an immediate health concern, DHS does recommend people avoid drinking or accidentally swallowing surface water with elevated levels of PFAS, and, to wash their hands after wading or playing in water with elevated levels of PFAS. DHS also advises that pets should be rinsed with clean water to avoid ingesting PFAS that may be on their fur. For more PFAS health-related information, please visit the DHS website.

The DNR maintains an online health guide for eating fish in Wisconsin, which includes fish consumption advice for every waterbody in the state. Advisories for the waterbodies sampled during this effort will be updated as needed after the fish results are received.

—In Their Opinion— How are we dune?

Oh yes. We hear it all the time. We're the "The Most Beautiful Place in America" from Good Morning America. We're "Sahara-Level Sand Dunes, Mediterranean Blue Water: Welcome to Michigan" according to the New York Times this September.

What keeps our secure footing as a top-10 darling? So many reasons, of course, but one stands out — or rather perches about the rest — our dunes.

Sleeping Bear Dunes National Lakeshore flaunts almost 40 miles of dune-meets-water coastline.

Our state has the distinction of hosting the largest collection of freshwater coastal sand dunes in the world.

A map of them, covering 230,000 acres, will be presented today in Lansing at the Michigan Coastal Dunes Symposium 2019.

This first, high-resolution map doubles the area previously mapped, according to Michigan State University researcher Alan Arbogast.

The economics of dunes will also arise.

A recent survey — #howyoudune — found that people spent an average of $133 each visit, according to MSU ecological economist Robert Richardson.

"More than 80 percent of responses to our online survey said access to coastal dunes in Michigan is extremely important to the quality of life for them and members of their household," Richardson said.

But dunes change — it's their nature — as do the times.

Currently about 54 percent of the total acreage of dunes are publicly owned or in conservancy.

About 32 percent of our dunes are considered "critical" and fall under state protection.

But threats to dunes and dune ecosystems persist — so must the conversation.

Today's symposium will address their unique value and using science to better manage the threats facing them.

Our dunes are attention-getting and ever-changing. Our awareness of #howwedune is critical.

Those little moments

I've been overwhelmed lately with this "cancel culture" business. We've all made mistakes. We've all sinned, and we all will again. One of the great glories of life is that we can begin again. Our sorrow for our sins and awareness of our weaknesses keeps helping us get better and be better. But we increasingly forget this. More and more, it seems the loudest voices in culture won't make room for growth and redemption. And so, people despair because they think they are stuck. And things on the news don't help, as we're all sucked into more terrible news and anger.

But did you notice the breath of fresh air recently? It was the day of the sentencing of former Dallas police officer Amber Guyger, who killed a man, Botham Jean, when she accidentally entered his apartment, thinking it was hers. I hope you've heard by now Jean's brother's testimony of forgiveness for Guyger. Brandt Jean said to Guyger in the courtroom: "I love you just like anyone else ... I personally want the best for you." He went on to encourage her to give her life to Christ.

And then, as you may have seen, he hugged her. That was the love of God he displayed, and he was able to do so because he's clearly encountered it in his own life. And you don't have to believe in God to have some awe and gratitude about so much that exists, including the incredibly complex and wonderful human person!

This message of forgiveness and the invitation to give your life to Christ is powerful. And you don't have to be Christian to appreciate it. We need this kind of radical love and forgiveness in our culture and lives.

One of my favorite writings of Pope Paul VI is about proclaiming Christ in the world. In a sermon, the pope said of Christ: "He is like us but more perfectly human, simple, poor, humble, and yet, while burdened with work, he is more patient. He spoke on our behalf; he worked miracles; and he founded a new kingdom: in it the poor are happy; peace is the foundation of a life in common; where the pure of heart and those who mourn are uplifted and comforted; the hungry find justice; sinners are forgiven; and all discover that they are brothers."

Another graceful moment came around the same time, but under much lighter circumstances. It was on late-night television, if you'll believe that. Patricia Heaton was being interviewed by Stephen Colbert on "The Late Show" about her new comedy series, "Carol's Second Act." Colbert and Heaton had bonded during a previous interview about their shared Catholic faith. They had a lot of fun with it last time, and this time the conversation turned much more reflective.

With joy radiating from her, Heaton talked about getting older and taking stock. She talked about giving up drinking, having come to realize it was both a little too much and completely unnecessary. She thanked the audience for applauding that news because she said some of her friends were disappointed, thinking she wouldn't be as much fun sober. We all make people feel uncomfortable when they try to seriously examine their lives and ask difficult questions.

They say God writes straight with crooked lines, that He works in mysterious ways. How many of us know that to be true? And, goodness, did I see that truth the night I happened upon Brandt Jean's witness, and Heaton's, too. They reminded me of this important fact: that love is for the unthinkable times and for the everyday.

We need more reflection, self-awareness and mercy in the world. People feel like they are drowning. We're in this together. Lend a hand to help someone above water, if even for a moment. It may make all the difference. I woke up one morning after seeing Jean and watching Heaton thinking: Can we give one another a break already? Can we encourage one another while it is still today?

Thanks be to God for cultural moments that help us see and be light when there is so much darkness.

On Oct. 8, 1998, the House triggered an open-ended impeachment inquiry against President Bill Clinton in a momentous 258-176 vote; 31 Democrats joined majority Republicans in opening the way for nationally televised impeachment hearings.

On this date

In 1871, the Great Chicago Fire erupted; fires also broke out in Peshtigo, Wisconsin, and in several communities in Michigan.

In 1934, Bruno Hauptmann was indicted by a grand jury in New Jersey for murder in the death of the kidnapped son of Charles and Anne Morrow Lindbergh.

In 1944, "The Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet," starring Ozzie and Harriet Nelson, made its debut on C-B-S Radio.

In 1945, President Harry S. Truman told a press conference in Tiptonville, Tennessee, that the secret scientific knowledge behind the atomic bomb would be shared only with Britain and Canada.

In 1956, Don Larsen pitched the only perfect game in a World Series to date as the New York Yankees beat the Brooklyn Dodgers in Game 5, 2-0.

In 1982, all labor organizations in Poland, including Solidarity, were banned.

In 1985, the hijackers of the Italian cruise ship Achille Lauro killed American passenger Leon Klinghoffer, who was in a wheelchair, and threw his body overboard.

In 1997, Scientists reported the Mars Pathfinder had yielded what could be the strongest evidence yet that Mars might once have been hospitable to life.

In 2002, A federal judge approved President George W. Bush's request to reopen West Coast ports, ending a 10-day labor lockout that was costing the U.S. economy an estimated $1 to $2 billion a day.

In 2004, thirty-four people, most of them Israelis, were killed when suicide bombers blew up the Taba Hilton Hotel in Egypt.

In 2005, a magnitude 7.6

earthquake flattened villages on the Pakistan-India border, killing an estimated 86,000 people.

In 2017, Harvey Weinstein was fired from The Weinstein Company amid allegations that he was responsible for decades of sexual harassment against actresses and employees. Vice President Mike Pence left the 49ers-Colts game in Indianapolis after about a dozen San Francisco players took a knee during the national anthem.

Ten years ago: An Arizona sweat lodge ceremony turned deadly as some participants became ill and collapsed inside the 415-square-foot structure; three died. (Motivational speaker James Arthur Ray, who'd led the ceremony, was convicted in 2011 of three counts of negligent homicide and served 20 months in prison.) A powerful car bomb exploded outside the Indian Embassy in Kabul, killing 17 people. Romanian-born German writer Herta and Paul Amirson won the Nobel Prize in literature.

One year ago: President Donald Trump said he had no plans to fire Deputy Attorney General Rod Rosenstein. The Nobel Prize in economics was awarded to American researchers William Nordhaus of Yale University and Paul Romer of New York University; Nordhaus was honored for his work on the economics of climate change, and Romer had produced research showing how governments can advance innovation. The New York Yankees lost by the largest margin in the team's long post-season history, 16-1, to the Boston Red Sox; Boston's Brock Holt became the first player ever to hit a single, double, triple and home run in the same post-season game. New Orleans Saints quarterback Drew Brees became the NFL's all-time leader in yards passing during a 43-19 win over the Washington Redskins.

POLICE REPORTS Gogebic County

A Gogebic County Sheriff's Department report said a deputy responded to an improper parking complaint on River Road and 4th Street in Ramsay on Oct. 1 at 9:30 a.m. The deputy tagged two vehicles for improper parking and one of them for no registration with a 24-hour tow warning.

A GCSO report said a deputy responded to a complaint of suspicious activity at Rainbow Falls north of Bessemer on Oct. 1 at 5:50 a.m. The deputy noted there were four vehicles in the parking lot and made an information-only report.

A GCSO report said a deputy responded to a call reporting a tree down over Lake Road in the proximity of the natural spring near Little Girl's Point Thursday at 4 p.m. The responding deputy notified the Gogebic Road Commission.

Ontonagon County

The Michigan State Police reported that a 45-year-old Mass City woman was arrested for operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol on Oct. 1 at 1:15 a.m., on M-38, near Woodspur Road in Ontonagon Township.

The Michigan State Police reported that a 25-year-old Marenisco Township woman was arrested for domestic violence at her residence on Oct. 1 at 4:40 p.m.

ACCIDENTS Gogebic County

A GCSO report said that a deputy responded to a call reporting a semi truck had struck an awning and bent a turnbuckle at the Walmart on Country Club Road in Ironwood Township on Sept. 30 at 11:52 a.m. An accident report was made.

ANIMAL COMPLAINTS Gogebic County

A GCSO report said a deputy responded to a complaint of wolves in the area from a resident on South Davis Road in Ironwood Township on Oct. 1 at 10 a.m. The caller said the wolves did not appear to be afraid of people and there were children and small animals in the area.

A GCSO report said a deputy responded to a caller reporting to have picked up a stray white and tan mixed female dog with red collar and leash along Airport Road in Ironwood Township Wednesday at 8:52 p.m. The caller brought the dog to H.O.P.E. Animal Shelter where the deputy arrived to conduct the transfer.

A GCSO report said a deputy responded to a fax from Western Upper Peninsula Health Department on Oct. 1 at 1:53 p.m., regarding two women being bit by the family dog. The incident occurred at their Wakefield home when the daughter yelled at the mother and the dog became upset and bit both of them, the report said. The health department placed the dog on a 10-day quarantine hold to observe for rabies.

A GCSO report said a stray kitten was taken in at KeenAgers Corporation on Brotherton Street in Wakefield Thursday at 4:25 p.m. The deputy responded and took the yellow and white kitten, which appeared to be in good health, to H.O.P.E. animal shelter.

A GCSO report said a deputy responded to a call from a Bessemer resident on Fairview Street, saying two stray dogs were captured and were being taken to H.O.P.E. Animal Shelter Friday at 4:55 p.m. The deputy met the caller at the animal shelter, according to the report.

Ironwood Historical Society to hold banquet

By KIM E. STROM

IRONWOOD — The Ironwood Area Historical Society is having its annual banquet Thursday at the Olde Suffolk Ale House at 125 South Suffolk Street.

This year's speaker will be Percy Smith. Smith retired 16 years ago as the superintendent of the Ironwood Area Schools. He will be giving a presentation on the history of the district-throughout the years, said historical society board member Sandy Sharp.

Smith said he will also be speaking about how state and local politics have affected the schools. He stated he is not affiliated with either major party.

There have been just under 16,000 graduates of the Ironwood Area Schools over the years, said Smith and he feels the district could do more to keep in touch with past graduates and staff members. "Many have gone on to do things and we don't even know (what they've gone on to do)," he said.

Smith will be speaking at 7:30 p.m. The public is invited.

disagreement over unfinished work and with responsibility for a sewer hookup issue. The agreement was that GCC would pay $4,925 for work not completed after the school year ended and Fitting assumed responsibility for the sewer issue.

Tim Kolesar, trustee, said on Monday that the board also thanks Fitting for stepping up to provide the contract that meant the Construction Technology program had a project in 2018-19. The classroom instruction is valuable but the hands-on experience is essential to learn the framing, concrete, plumbing, electrical and the many other trades associated with home-building, he said.

"For us to have an effective building trades program the kids have to build," Kolesar said. "That is the only place you are going to learn."

Kolesar said it was unfortunate that the mediation resulted and the conflict correction that followed. He said the GCC board should also express thanks to Fitting for providing the students with an excellent learning opportunity in an effective learning environment.

"There would have been nobody to purchase the house that was built, that is correct," Lupino said after the meeting. "He (Fitting) was the only person."

The other matter of the special meeting was a 7-0 approval to accept the resignation of the English department faculty member Nicole Ellet-Petersen, who will leave Nov. 1 to start a new position at Pine Technical and Community College in Pine City, Minnesota.

Ellet-Petersen has taught English at GCC for seven years and chairs the college wellness committee, said Erik Guenard, GCC business director. She is also leading the college general education assessment team for the Higher Learning Commission, he said.

With the action the board authorized Guenard to start a search for a new English faculty member. An adjunct professor will take over the two English courses that Ellet-Petersen is currently teaching, Guenard said.

Bessemer

Loper said that according to the city's lawyer, they are in compliance as they make accommodations where possible. It was agreed by all council members that the building's inaccessibility to handicapped residents in wheelchairs, for example, has been an issue for some time.

Loper added that the city has looked into several ways to address the issue such as stair lifts, a ramp leading from the back to the auditorium and even installing elevators, which would be very costly.

Another partial fix would be to change the venue for city meetings to a handicapped-accessible location, said Loper. Also, if the city knows in advance, necessary accommodations can be made, but as Miskovich pointed out, that isn't always possible for some.

Council members agreed to continue looking into the issue, contacting contractors and looking into federal grants to resolve the issues. Currently there is access to the library in city hall.

In other business, the board:

—Discussed address changes in the South Massie Avenue and Industrial Access Road areas. Currently, addresses do not match with the existing grid structure with odd numbers on one side and even on the other, said Loper. Mayor Adam Zak expressed concern as a first responder that the way the numbers are assigned now makes it hard for police and fire trucks to find buildings.

Present was a local business owner who said the cost of changing such things as his business cards, menus, and mailings would be "astronomical." Loper referenced another business owner who wished to wait until Jan 1, 2020 and a third who wanted to do it as soon as possible.

The board agreed to give property owners until Oct. 31, 2020 to make the changes and that they could be made individually and not all at once. The business owner at the meeting was satisfied with the arrangement. "We want to accommodate where possible," said Zak. There are 10 addresses that would change.

—Approved a request from National Guard woman Carmen LeGuardia for water, sewer and garbage fees be waived, pending approval from Eagle Waste, as she is being deployed overseas. A motion was unanimously approved to apply the same consideration for future servicemen or woman who are deployed. Loper said the U.S. Department of Agriculture Rural Development has approved the city waiving these fees as long as the city can still repay its bond payments.

Any future waivers would be for the time a member of the armed forces is on active duty, provided no one else lives in the home and a copy of the deployment orders are received. Miskovich commented from experience having to worry about those kinds of things can distract from the job.

—Approved a variance request for placement of a garage outside of the specifications listed in the zoning ordinance.

—Agreed to address a concern by Bessemer Area Schools superintendent Dave Wineburner about keeping the crossing areas near the schools free of snow and debris at a future meeting. Wineburner wrote a letter to the council that said there was also a problem with students also "running out into traffic at undesignated crossing areas, and cutting between vehicles in order to cross U.S. 2 as well as city streets."

The council would also like to invite the county road commissioner to a council meeting and entertained the idea of having law enforcement stop kids for jaywalking in order to ensure the safety of those that do so.

—Agreed to schedule a workshop to discuss weight restrictions on certain roadways within the city.

—Scheduled a condemnation hearing for Dec. 16, 2019 for three houses in the city.

"All continue their work and service today," Abelman said.

Michigan Gov. Gretchen Whitmer and area legislators are also recognizing the three organizations for a century of dedication and service, she said. A tribute certificate will be presented to the organizations at p.m.

Myron Re, club historian for Marty's Goldenaires, will have an exhibit for the organization that was established in 1950. Martin "Marty" Lamoreux presented the idea of a drum and bugle corps to the membership of the American Legion Post 27.

3 get Nobel Medicine prize for learning how cells use oxygen

By MARIA CHENG, CHRISTOPHER CHESTER and MICHAEL WARREN
Associated Press

LONDON (AP) — Two Americans and a British scientist won the 2019 Nobel Prize for Physiology or Medicine for discovering how the body's cells sense and react to oxygen levels, work that has paved the way for new strategies to fight anemia, cancer and other diseases, the Nobel Committee said.

Drs. William G. Kaelin Jr. of Harvard University, Gregg L. Semenza of Johns Hopkins University and Peter J. Ratcliffe at the Francis Crick Institute in Britain and Oxford University will share equally the 9 million kronor ($918,000) cash award, the Karolinska Institute said.

It is the 110th prize in the category that has been awarded since 1901.

Their work has "greatly expanded our knowledge of how physiological response makes life possible," the committee said, explaining that the scientists identified the biological machinery that regulates how genes respond to varying levels of oxygen.

That response is key to things like producing red blood cells, generating new blood vessels and fine-tuning the immune system.

The Nobel Committee said scientists are focused on developing drugs that can treat diseases by either activating or blocking the body's oxygen-sensing machinery.

The oxygen response is hijacked by cancer cells, for example, which stimulate formation of blood vessels to help themselves grow. And people with kidney failure often get hormonal treatments for anemia, but the work of the new laureates points the way toward new treatments, Nils-Goran Larsson of the Nobel committee told The Associated Press.

Reached at his home, Kaelin said he was half-asleep Monday morning when the phone rang. It was Stockholm.

"I was aware as a scientist that if you get a phone call at 5 a.m. with too many digits, it's sometimes very good news, and my heart started racing. It was all a bit surreal," the 61-year-old said.

Kaelin said he isn't sure yet how he'll spend the prize money but "obviously I'll try to put it to some good cause." Kaelin is paid by the Howard Hughes Medical Institute, which also supports AP's Health and Science department.

Ratcliffe, 65, said he was summoned out of a meeting this morning by his secretary, who had "a look of urgency."

"He had a Swedish accent, so I figured it probably wasn't one of my friends pulling my leg," he said of the Nobel caller.

Trained as a kidney doctor, Ratcliffe said his research began when he and colleagues simply wanted to figure out how cells sense oxygen.

"I thought it was a definable problem and just thought we'd find out how it worked," he said. Ratcliffe said it was about two years into the research program that first began in 1990 when they realized the discovery had much wider significance.

"We saw that it wasn't just cells in the kidney that know how to sense oxygen, but all cells in the body," he said. "They use this to do a huge range of other things, reprogram the cells, cause the growth of blood vessels, differentiation of cells. There are hundreds and thousands of processes the body uses to adapt to and regulate its oxygen levels."

He said while some promising drugs have been developed, including for kidney patients who don't get enough oxygen, it will be years before it's clear whether such discoveries are going to change the lives of tens of thousands.

Ratcliffe described his fellow laureates as "colleagues, competitors and friends." He said felt honored by the Nobel accolade but that his main goal had always been pure science.

"The satisfaction is really finding things out that will continue to be true for all time," he said. "This is for me an eternal truth and as a scientist, we work away, we find these things out and we hope they will be useful."

Semenza, a Johns Hopkins University researcher, was awarded the Nobel Prize for Physiology or Medicine. He will share the prize with Drs. William G. Kaelin Jr. and Peter J. said it was when he and colleagues were studying a gene in a rare cell type in the kidney and they did an experiment that showed the factor they discovered — which was linked to oxygen — that suggested it had widespread physiological importance. It turns out that the gene turns on erythropoietin, or EPO, which controls red blood cell production, when cells don't get enough oxygen.

"We found it very interesting that the body can respond to oxygen," he told the AP. That discovery has led to treatments for people with chronic kidney disease who become anemic when their kidneys stop making EPO. "Now, drugs can turn on EPO production by increasing these factors."

Semenza said it was likely one or more of these drugs will be approved for production in the next few years and that one has already been green-lighted in China.

Ali Tavassoli, a Cancer Research U.K. fellow, said he was surprised only that the trio had not already won the Nobel.

"The mechanism they've discovered is essential to the majority of solid tumors," he said, explaining that unlike normal cells, cancer cells are often able to survive in low-oxygen conditions. Tavassoli said he and others are currently trying to develop compounds that would compromise cancer cells' ability to survive when the oxygen supply drops.

"That would allow us to strike at the core of what a tumor needs to survive," he said.

Last year, James Allison of the United States and Tasuku Honjo of Japan won the 2018 Nobel Prize for Medicine for their work in immunotherapy, activating the body's natural defense system to fight tumors.

Monday's announcement kicked off this year's Nobel Prizes. The physics prize will be handed out Tuesday, followed by the chemistry prize on Wednesday. This year there is a double-header for the Nobel Literature Prize — one each for 2018 and 2019 — which will be awarded Thursday. The Peace Prize will be announced on Friday.

The 2018 Nobel Literature prize was suspended after a sex abuse scandal rocked the Swedish Academy, the body that awards the literature prizes, so they are awarding two prizes this year.

The economics prize will be awarded next Monday. Officially known as the Bank of Sweden Prize in Economic Sciences in Memory of Alfred Nobel, it wasn't created by Nobel, but by Riksbanken, Sweden's central bank, in 1968.

MARY JANE McHenry competed in the Arizona State Fair cooking contest 45 years in a row. McHenry will be bringing food like cookies, muffins and focaccia made with rosemary from her garden.

Arizona woman has baked her way to state fair for 45 years

PHOENIX (AP) — While many visitors will be going to the Arizona State Fair for the fried food, Mary Jane McHenry will be bringing food such as cookies, muffins and focaccia made with rosemary from her garden.

The longtime Phoenix resident is entering the fair's culinary competition in multiple categories for the 45th consecutive year. On Tuesday, McHenry will load up her car with at least eight entries and take them to the Arizona Veterans Memorial Coliseum for judging. Competing at the fair, which runs through Oct. 27, has become a special tradition for the baking enthusiast.

"It's satisfying, it's calming, it's rewarding," she told The Arizona Republic. "It's kind of a feeling of quiet satisfaction."

McHenry generally submits more recipes than she plans to actually make. She will wait until a few days before submission deadline for inspiration to strike.

"It makes it more fun. I don't want to get bored doing what I do," she said.

A retired teacher, McHenry grew up with a family that loved to bake. At 6 years old, she earned first place at a fair in Michigan with her mother's cookie recipe. Her interest in competing evaporated not long after, but her passion for baking remained.

Yet, somehow, in 1974, McHenry decided to try her culinary skills at the Arizona State Fair. She entered an aloe vera jelly. She doesn't remember if it won, but she does recall wanting to return.

Since then, McHenry has entered baked goods, canned goods and even salsas and prickly pear jelly. But when it comes to baking, she is not about cake decorating — just flavor and texture. Her previous winning pastries include walnut bread, Portuguese sweet bread and Joe Frogger cookies.

"It just really makes her happy," said McHenry's daughter, Tracy McBride. "There's not enough joy in the world anyway."

What doesn't make her happy is seeing the number of entries in the culinary and homemaking competitions dwindle over the years. Brianda Martinez, an Arizona State Fair representative, agreed that state fairs in general are seeing a drop in people interested in things such as baking and canning.

"Those talents and skills aren't being passed down to younger generations," Martinez said in an email.

The fair is hoping to get younger people interested with categories like cupcake decorating.

6 things every woman should know about heart health and maintenance

American Heart Association News

Heart disease is the nation's leading killer of women.

Among women, 90% have one or more risk factors for heart disease at some point in their lives, according to American Heart Association statistics. Yet 80% of cardiovascular diseases are preventable.

Get annual checkups

It's important to get annual checkups to assess heart-health risk and take action, Mieres said. Prepare for the appointment, much as you would when gathering documents to meet with a financial adviser.

"You go to your accountant at tax time, and you don't show up empty-handed," she said. Be prepared to discuss any family history of heart disease or other concerns. "You should not be passive. You should have a conversation."

Know the symptoms of a heart attack

Women may experience the "classic" heart attack symptoms of chest pressure, chest discomfort or shortness of breath, just as men do.

"But women also may have symptoms such as back pain, usually on the left side; shoulder pain; a fullness in the stomach; or nausea as signs of an impending heart attack," cautioned Mieres.

Tell your doctor if you had a pregnancy complication

Recent research has focused on heart disease linked to pregnancy-related complications. Diabetes and hypertension during pregnancy as well as early delivery have been linked to increased cardiovascular disease risk years later.

Get enough sleep

Lack of sleep — getting less than six or seven hours a night — is connected to heart disease, research has shown. Poor sleep has been linked to high blood pressure, can make it difficult to lose weight and may make you less likely to want to exercise.

Tame stress

Chronic stress is another area of concern for women. It can lead to behaviors and factors that impact heart disease, such as high blood pressure, high cholesterol, inactivity and overeating.

To cope with stress, eat healthy foods, exercise and get plenty of sleep. Consider talking to others about your stress, including a friend, parent, doctor or counselor.

Find a health partner

In all heart-healthy efforts, it helps to have a partner in the endeavor, Mieres said.

Work with a health care provider to find a customized treatment plan that fits your daily life and medical needs.

"It's OK if you fall off the wagon. You have that person to help you get back on track," said Mieres. "There is strength in numbers."

Trump envoy set to testify hasn't always been Trump backer

WASHINGTON (AP) — An envoy wrapped up in a congressional impeachment inquiry was a late convert to President Donald Trump, initially supporting another candidate in the Republican primary and once refusing to participate in a fundraiser on his behalf.

But Gordon Sondland nonetheless donated $1 million to Trump's election effort and ultimately scored a plum post as U.S. ambassador to the European Union.

Now, a whistleblower's complaint and text messages released by another envoy portray Sondland as a potentially important witness to allegations that the president sought to dig up dirt on a rival in the name of foreign policy.

On Tuesday, Sondland heads to Capitol Hill to face questions about the episode, the second time in as many weeks that congressional lawmakers have privately interviewed an ambassador about the president's push to get Ukraine to investigate Democrat Joe Biden ahead of the 2020 presidential election.

Until last week, Sondland was far better known in his home state of Washington than in the nation's capital, where he finds himself embroiled in an impeachment inquiry centered on a July 25 call between Trump and his Ukrainian counterpart. But even if not accustomed to the global spotlight, the wealthy hotelier, philanthropist and generous benefactor of political campaigns has long been comfortable around the well-connected on both sides of the political aisle.

Associated Press

"He very much enjoyed having personal relationships with those in power," said David Nierenberg, a Washington state investment adviser who has known Sondland for years. "Some people collect books. Some people collect cars. He collected those relationships."

Text messages released by House Democrats show Sondland, the U.S. ambassador to the European Union, working with another of Trump's envoys to get Ukraine to agree to investigate any potential interference in the 2016 U.S. election and of the energy company that appointed Biden's son Hunter to its board. In exchange, the American officials dangled the offer of a Washington meeting with Trump for Ukraine's new president. There has been no evidence of wrongdoing by Biden or his son.

The messages also show Sondland trying to reassure a third diplomat that their actions were appropriate, but that they should take precautions by limiting their text messages.

"The President has been crystal clear no quid pro quo's of any kind. The President is trying to evaluate whether Ukraine is truly going to adopt the transparency and reforms that President Zelensky promise during his campaign," he wrote, adding, "I suggest we stop the back and forth by text."

Like the president who picked him, Sondland cut an unconventional path to becoming a Washington power broker.

Court

asked to intervene in disputes between congressional Democrats and the White House that might also involve the possible impeachment of the Republican president.

Roberts would preside over a Senate trial of Trump if the House were to impeach him.

Its biggest decisions, in cases involving abortion, protections for young immigrants and LGBT rights, are likely to be handed down in late June, four months before the election.

Those cases probably will highlight the divisions on a court made up of five conservatives appointed by Republican presidents and four liberals named by Democrats.

But on Monday, conservative and liberal justices appeared to agree that the same rules should apply in federal and state trials. They heard arguments in an appeal by a Louisiana man who is serving a life term for killing a woman after a jury voted 10-2 to convict him. Oregon is the only other state that allows for non-unanimous convictions for some crimes.

Louisiana voters have changed the law for crimes committed beginning this year.

The court has formally held that most of the Bill of Rights applies to states as well as the federal government, but it has not done so on the Sixth Amendment's unanimous jury requirement.

"What about the constitutional rights of people in prison?" Gorsuch asked Louisiana Solicitor General Elizabeth Murrill, who argued that the state's court system could be inundated with claims if the justices rule against Louisiana.

A decision for defendant Evangelisto Ramos would result in his conviction being overturned and also would affect defendants who are still appealing their convictions. But the court is not expected to say anything about defendants whose cases are final. It would take another round of lawsuits to figure that out.

The case about an insanity defense comes from Kansas, where James Kraig Kahler was sentenced to death for killing his estranged wife, two teenage daughters and his wife's grandmother.

Kahler wanted to mount an insanity defense, but Kansas is one of four states that eliminated a defendant's ability to plead not guilty by reason of insanity. Idaho, Montana and Utah are the others. Alaska also limits the insanity defense.

It was unclear how the case would come out. Justice Elena Kagan suggested that even if Kahler were to win at the Supreme Court and could plead insanity, he ultimately would not get a reprieve from his conviction. In no state, she said, "would your client be found insane."

Arlene Koplin-Hartwell

WOODRUFF, Wis. — Arlene S. Koplin-Hartwell, 83, of Minocqua, Wis., passed away on Tuesday, Oct. 1, 2019, at the Howard Young Medical Center in Woodruff.

Arlene Sophie Marros was born March 5, 1936, in Illinois, the daughter of Willard and Irene (Kobida) Marros. She was raised in Keeneyville, Ill., and attended school in Elgin, Ill., and graduated from Larkin High School. On Nov. 27, 1954, Arlene was joined in marriage to Herman Koplin. Arlene and Herman moved to West Chicago, Ill., where they started a family. Arlene began work with Gretna Corp in Wheaton, Ill., as a bookkeeper and then went to work for Stone Service in West Chicago.

In 1977, Arlene and Herman moved to Pence where Arlene began work with H&R Block. While living in Pence, Arlene also served as town clerk. After moving to Poynette, Arlene and Herman opened K's Dairyland Restaurant in Portage which they operated until 1992. Herman passed away in 1992 and Arlene moved to St. Charles, Ill. In St. Charles, Arlene went to work for Cordogan's Pianoland as a bookkeeper and met Walter Hartwell.

Arlene and Walter were married on July 30, 1993. They retired and moved to Florida in 1997. Throughout her life, Arlene was very active and enjoyed sailing, downhill skiing, fishing, playing the organ, bowling, traveling and flower gardening. She was a member of the Power Squadron in Florida and the Experimental Aircraft Association. She loved her children and grandchildren and hosting gatherings.

Arlene is survived by her three sons, Ted (Jean) Koplin of Yorkville, Ill., Ray (Cheryl) Koplin of Boulder Junction, and Ron (Janice) Koplin of Poynette; nine grandchildren, Randy, Eric, Paul (Sara), Brittney (Geoff) Johnson, Dan (Rachel), Amy, Tim (Rachel), Cody and Tyler; 11 great-grandchildren; and several nieces and nephews.

She was preceded in death by her parents; first husband, Herman Koplin; and second husband, Walter Hartwell.

A memorial service celebrating Arlene's life will be held at 2 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 12, at the Hayward Funeral Home in Hayward, Wis. A time of gathering with family and friends will be held from 1 to 2 p.m. on Saturday at the funeral home. A private interment will be in the Greenwood Cemetery in Hayward.

In lieu of flowers, memorials may be directed to the Alzheimer's Association or any charity of choice.

Facebook to settle advertiser lawsuit for $40 million

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Facebook has agreed to pay $40 million to advertisers who said it inflated the amount of time its users watched videos.

The San Jose Mercury News says the California-based social media giant denied any wrongdoing in a lawsuit settlement. The settlement notice was filed Friday by the plaintiffs in Oakland federal court.

Advertisers sued Facebook in 2016 over user metrics that supposedly measured the average length of time consumers spent viewing posted video ads. The lawsuit said that the time was inflated by up to 900 percent and that helped convince advertisers to buy Facebook's video advertising services.

Facebook publicly acknowledged an error in the formula. The company denied allegations that its engineers knew about problems for more than a year and did nothing.

THIS JULY 23, 2008 file image made available by NASA shows the planet Saturn, as seen from the Cassini spacecraft. Twenty new moons have been found around Saturn, giving the ringed planet a total of 82, scientists said Monday.

Discovery of 20 new moons puts Saturn ahead of Jupiter

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The solar system has a new winner in the moon department.

Twenty new moons have been found around Saturn, giving the ringed planet a total of 82, scientists said Monday. That beats Jupiter and its 79 moons.

"It was fun to find that Saturn is the true moon king," said astronomer Scott Sheppard of the Carnegie Institution for Science.

If it's any consolation to the Jupiter crowd, our solar system's biggest planet — Jupiter — still has the biggest moon. Jupiter's Ganymede is almost half the size of Earth. By contrast, Saturn's 20 new moons are minuscule, each barely 3 miles in diameter.

Sheppard and his team used a telescope in Hawaii to spot Saturn's 20 new moons over the summer. About 100 even tinier moons may be orbiting Saturn, still waiting to be found, he said.

Astronomers have pretty much completed the inventory of moons as small as 3 miles around Saturn and 1 mile around Jupiter, according to Sheppard. Future larger telescopes will be needed to see anything smaller.

It's harder spotting mini moons around Saturn than Jupiter, Sheppard said, given how much farther Saturn is.

"So seeing that Saturn has more moons even though it is harder to find them, shows just how many moons Saturn has collected over time," he wrote in an email. These baby moons may have come from larger parent moons that broke apart right after Saturn formed.

Seventeen of Saturn's new moons orbit the planet in the opposite, or retrograde, direction. The other three circle in the same direction that Saturn rotates. They're so far from Saturn that it takes two to three years to complete a single orbit.

Airline went into records after Max crash, engineer says

SEATTLE (AP) — Ethiopian Airlines' former chief engineer says in a whistleblower complaint filed with regulators that the carrier went into the maintenance records on a Boeing 737 Max jet a day after it crashed this year, a breach he contends was part of a pattern of corruption that included fabricating documents, signing off on shoddy repairs and even beating those who got out of line.

Yonas Yeshanew, who resigned this summer and is seeking asylum in the U.S., said that while it is unclear what, if anything, in the records was altered, the decision to go into them at all when they should have been sealed reflects a government-owned airline with few boundaries and plenty to hide.

"The brutal fact shall be exposed ... Ethiopian Airlines is pursuing the vision of expansion, growth and profitability by compromising safety," Yeshanew said in his report, which he gave to The Associated Press after sending it last month to the U.S. Federal Aviation Administration and other international air safety agencies.

Yeshanew's criticism of Ethiopian's maintenance practices, backed by three other former employees who spoke to AP, makes him the latest voice urging investigators to take a closer look at potential human factors in the Max saga and not just focus on Boeing's faulty anti-stall system, which has been blamed in two crashes in four months.

It's not a coincidence, he said, that Ethiopian saw one of its Max planes go down when many other airlines that fly the plane suffered no such tragedy.

Ethiopian Airlines portrayed Yeshanew as a disgruntled former employee and categorically denied his allegations, which paint a blistering counterpoint to the perception of the airline as one of Africa's most successful companies and a source of national pride.

Yeshanew alleged in his report and interviews with AP that Ethiopian is growing too fast and struggling to keep planes in the air now that it is carrying 11 million passengers a year, four times what it was handling a decade ago, including flights to Los Angeles, Chicago, Washington and Newark, New Jersey. He said mechanics are overworked and pressed to take shortcuts to get planes cleared for takeoff, while pilots are flying on too little rest and not enough training.

And he produced an FAA audit from three years ago that found, among dozens of other problems, that nearly all of the 82 mechanics, inspectors and supervisors whose files were reviewed lacked the minimum requirements for doing their jobs.

LaFleur says 4-1 Packers 'playing for each other'

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — There are six rookie NFL head coaches this season, and Green Bay's Matt LaFleur is standing head and shoulders above them all.

LaFleur and the Packers improved to 4-1 with a 34-24 win over the Cowboys on Sunday.

While LaFleur is a yard shy of being undefeated, the other five rookie coaches are a combined 4-18-1. The 39-year-old LaFleur shared the secret to his early success on Monday.

"Just thinking about the teams that, whether it's when I was in high school, college or in the NFL, generally speaking, I think the teams that were the closest, that were the most connected, that played for each other, had the most success. And I don't think that's by chance," LaFleur said. "Obviously, you gotta have really good players, and we're fortunate that we have a bunch of really good players. But I think the more that they continue to play for each other, I think that that's going to lead to greater results and greater success."

WHAT'S WORKING

The Aarons. Aaron Rodgers, with his biggest receiving threat in Davante Adams out because of a toe injury, threw for 238 yards to nine targets and had no interceptions en route to earning his seventh career win against the Cowboys. Rodgers now has won four straight at AT&T Stadium. He is 3-0 against the Cowboys in that stadium and also led the Packers to a win in Super Bowl XLV in Jerry Jones' house.

"Yeah, I've had some fun around here," Rodgers said. "Four fun ones."

Aaron Jones waved "bye-bye" to Dallas cornerback Byron Jones on the way to one of his four rushing touchdowns. Jones, who played high school and college ball in El Paso, Texas, became the first player ever to run for four touchdowns against the Cowboys. Jones finished with 182 scrimmage yards (107 rushing and 75 receiving) in a dominant effort as the focal point of a Packers offense that was missing fellow running back Jamaal Williams.

WHAT'S NOT WORKING

The offense still can't score TDs from close range.

"Two weeks in a row now we haven't been able to punch it in from the 1-yard line, so there's obviously room for improvement there," LaFleur said.

Green Bay had first-and-goal at the 1. Jones was stopped for a 1-yard loss on first down, Rodgers threw back-to-back incompletions and Green Bay settled for a field goal.

In Week 4, Rodgers and the Packers turned over the ball on downs on the goal line in the fourth quarter of a loss to the Eagles after four straight passes.

Green Bay's inefficiency didn't hurt it this week. But if the Packers can't figure out how to finish from tight in, it will no doubt cost them again down the road.

STOCK UP

Pass rushers Za'Darius Smith and Preston Smith, no relation, combined for three more sacks on Sunday. The two now have 10 1-2 sacks this season. Preston Smith's 5 1-2 sacks rank fifth in the NFL through five weeks, while Za'Darius Smith's five sacks have him tied for sixth in the league.

"Just go. Wreck shop, have fun. That's what we do," Packers outside linebackers coach Mike Smith said.

STOCK DOWN

Jaire Alexander has had a tremendous season thus far. He has gotten high praise from both LaFleur and Rodgers. But the second-year cornerback had his struggles Sunday against Cowboys receiver Amari Cooper. In total, not just in Alexander's coverage, Cooper finished the game with 11 catches for a career-high 226 yards. He had a 53-yard touchdown against Alexander.

"You know what? Sometimes that happens in this league, especially when you're going up against one of the best receivers in this league," LaFleur said. "That's why you have to have a short memory as a defensive back. I love everything about Jaire. I think he competes on each and every play."

Alexander had an interception and a team-high three defended passes in the game, but Cooper was the clear winner in the battle between a very good young cornerback and one of the best route runners in the league.

INJURED

Center Corey Linsley suffered a concussion, while rookie safety Darnell Savage left with an ankle injury. Neither player returned. Will Redmond replaced Savage, while Lucas Patrick took over for Linsley.

"Lucas did a good job," Packers offensive line coach Adam Stenavich. "I was proud of the way he went in and competed. He plays with great effort. He kept our offense rolling when Corey went down. That's always the biggest thing when you bring a center in is his communication, his targeting. He has to get everything on point. I was fired up for how he did that. Had a few deals that we gotta clean up, but I was proud of him."

Tight end Robert Tonyan suffered a hip injury and inside linebacker B.J. Goodson left with a neck injury. Oren Burks, who missed the first four games with a pectoral injury, made his season debut in place of Goodson.

Za'Darius Smith went down three different times with a knee issue, while cornerback Kevin King left with a knee injury and didn't return.

KEY NUMBER

3 — Green Bay's struggles on third downs continued on Sunday. The Packers converted 3 of 12 third-down opportunities.

NEXT STEPS

The Packers will host NFC North foe Detroit on Monday night. It will be Green Bay's third prime-time game of the season. The Packers split the previous two.

Ironwood boys fourth at West Iron

By JOHN VRANCIC
Escanaba Daily Press

GAASTRA - When a cross country team places five runners among the top 11 in any given meet, the odds are usually in its favor.

The Houghton boys did just that here Monday, but settled for runner-up honors in the West Iron County Invitational at the George Young Recreational Complex.

Ishpeming grabbed five of the top six spots, winning the fourth WestPAC Conference meet this season with 20 points. The Gremlins scored 36, followed by Negaunee 85 and Ironwood 100.

The Kingsford girls won with 39 points. Hancock edged Westwood 60-61 for runner-up honors and fourth-place Houghton had 71.

Houghton junior Joe Wood, who won the boys' 3.1-mile, two-lap race in 17 minutes, 16.4 seconds, was followed by five Ishpeming runners on this sunny and mild day.

"I wanted to stay with the front pack for the first lap, then put the hammer down in the second lap," said Wood. "I think this is a confidence boost going into Thursday (WestPAC Finals at Negaunee)."

Ishpeming senior Jonah Broberg was runner-up (17:28.8) with Jordan Longtine third (17:52.3).

"I wanted to get ahead of everybody, but Joe ran it hard today," said Broberg. "I went the wrong way on one turn and lost about 10 seconds. Joe took off and I had to try to catch up. Our team did well. I think we'll do well in the (Division 2) U.P. Finals."

Ishpeming's pack was followed by Houghton's Branden Peterson (18:06.7), Jake Sullivan (18:32.8) and Evan Labyak (18:37.7).

"We need to do the same in the Finals," coach P.J. Pruett said of the Hematites' two through six finish. "Our boys are getting faster which is a good sign at the end of the year."

Ironwood's David Collins placed 10th at 18:41.9.

"We're trying to get as close to Ishpeming as we can," said Ironwood coach Ben Schmandt. "We're progressing pretty well. Our goal is get the (Indianhead) conference title and a trophy at the U.P. Finals. Our girls are young, but they've come a long way. This has absolutely been a learning experience for them."

Negaunee senior Emily Paupore took the girls' race at 19:33.4, two days after placing ninth in Division 1 at downstate Portage in a school-record 18:31.1.

"I kind of expected that," she said. "I ran as hard as I could on Saturday. I kind of wanted to peak for that race at this time of year. I'm glad I got the race in downstate. My legs felt stiff at times and I felt it on the hills. I ran a tempo pace today."

Kingsford junior Melanie Wenzel placed second (20:55.9), followed by Negaunee senior Talon Prusi (21:03.5), Houghton sophomore Ingrid Seagren (21:11.3) and Westwood's Elizabeth Williams (21:32.8).

"My shoes got untied and didn't have as good kick in the end," said Prusi. "I was able to stay with Melanie the whole way and got ahead of her for a short time. Melanie has had a nice season. She's a very strong runner. It was hard to see the markings on the course because they blended in with the leaves. I had one wrong turn and lost about 10 seconds. The course was wet and had real soft mud (from recent rainfall). Our feet were sinking a couple inches. It was a nice day for running, though. The temperature (upper 50s) was perfect."

Houghton ran without its No. 2 runner, sophomore Maria Velat who will miss the remainder of the season due to a nerve condition.

"We're worried about Maria, hoping everything is all right with her," said Gremlins' coach Traci Welch. "The girls had a rough race today. The boys ran strong. I like our possibilities in D-1."

This marked the second straight fourth-place finish for Seagren.

"It was a real close race," she said. "I was pushing a long time to stay with them. I need to pick it up a little more in the middle of the race. I tried to push it in the end, but I couldn't quite catch them. We're running for Maria. We want to do our best for her."

Houghton's Autumn Eles took eighth (22:02.4), followed by Hancock's Maylie Kilpela (22:09.5) and Calumet's Kiira Berg (22:16.5).

Boys

Ishpeming 20, Houghton 36, Negaunee 85, Ironwood 100, Calumet 151, Westwood 164, Kingsford 200. Watersmeet and Hancock NTS.

Top 10 - 1, Joe Wood, Houghton, 17:16.4; 2, Jonah Broberg, Ishpeming, 17:28.8; 3, Jordan Longtine, Ishpeming, 17:52.5; 4, Silas Broberg, Ishpeming, 17:56.6; 5, Joseph King, Ishpeming, 17:57.5; 6, David Liimata, Ishpeming, 17:58.4; 7, Branden Peterson, Houghton, 18:06.7; 8, Jake Sullivan, Houghton, 18:32.8; 9, Evan Labyak, Houghton, 18:37.7; 10, David Collins, Ironwood, 18:41.9.

Girls

Kingsford 39, Hancock 60, Westwood 61, Houghton 71, Calumet 114, Ironwood 188, West Iron County 191. Negaunee and Ishpeming NTS.

Top 10 - 1, Emily Paupore, Negaunee, 19:33.4; 2, Melanie Wenzel, Kingsford, 20:55.9; 3, Talon Prusi, Kingsford, 21:03.5; 4, Ingrid Seagren, Houghton, 21:11.3; 5, Elizabeth Williams, Westwood, 21:32.8; 6, Sarah Kulas, Kingsford, 21:43; 7, Taylor Demay, Kingsford, 21:52.8; 8, Autumn Eles, Houghton, 22:02.4; 9, Maylie Kilpela, Hancock, 22:09.5; 10, Kiira Berg, Calumet, 22:16.5.

Devils fall in 5 to Bayfield

IRONWOOD — Ironwood hasn't had much luck in five-game volleyball matches lately.

The Red Devils fell to Bayfield 3-2 Monday night, their third five-set defeat in eight days. They fell to Drummond last Monday and to Hurley Thursday.

Ironwood dropped the Indianhead Conference matchup against the Trollers 21-25, 25-12, 25-12, 23-25, 15-9.

"We've gone to five a lot and we haven't been able to win," Ironwood coach Lisa Fechter said. "It's like we always end up being down right away, we can never jump on a team and get a lead, so we're always playing from behind in the fifth game."

"Hopefully we're building from this and learning and we start peaking at the right time. We know we can execute, we just haven't been able to do it and pull the win yet. We've won games, but we haven't a tight one like that when we go to five."

Fechter said they played flat in the first three games, but they were at least consistent enough in the first one to pull it out.

"We weren't moving our feet, we weren't talking," she said. "I always think of it as Mondays we don't play that great. It's a struggle to get ourselves into the game on a Monday. We played OK in the first one, but in the next two, it's like, 'Oh my gosh, what's happening?'"

Caitlyn Mylly and Jordan Tanula each had eight kills to lead the Red Devils. Laney Osterholm had four and Aundrea Stengard three. Tanula also had three aces and Osterholm and Mylly both had two.

Maddie Vaughn finished with 18 assists. Madison Huotari had six digs.

Ironwood (6-11, 1-6) hosts Mellen Thursday.

Northstars sweep Granite Diggers

MELLEN, Wis. — Hurley swept Mellen 25-22, 27-25, 25-11 in Indianhead Conference volleyball Monday night.

It's the second conference win in a row for the Northstars after a tough start to the Indianhead schedule.

"Things are going in the right direction, that's for sure,"

Hurley coach Aaron Bender said.

Hurley's defense has been playing well and the outside hitters have been consistent, he said.

Shanaya Fleig led Hurley with eight kills. Darian Bender had three kills, 10 assists and two aces. Nicole DiGiorgio had three kills, 13 assists and two aces.

Aly Kukowski totaled four kills and a block. Kylee Hewitt, Olivia France and Sam Leoni each had three kills. France also had two aces.

Hurley (8-12) plays Indianhead leader Mercer Thursday night.

Animal harassment needs to stop

Dear Annie: I am 28 years old, and recently celebrated my second wedding anniversary. I have been with my husband, Tom, for a total of five years, but due to immigration trials and tribulations, we have only been living together full time for two-and-a-half years (first in the United States and now in the United Kingdom).

Dear Annie

My issue is my husband's relationship with my beloved 9-year-old cat, Whiskers.

When Tom first began to visit me, prior to our engagement, and then live with me in the United States, he had no issue with Whiskers — loving him and accompanying him outside into the garden when we had a short-fenced yard at a rental property and Whiskers was not allowed outside alone. This continued until about a year ago, when Tom began to dislike Whiskers.

It started with purring. Whiskers is large and loud, and his purring is certainly noticeable, but I have always thought of this as a "happy noise." Now, Tom will leave the room in a huff if Whiskers starts purring, and he is not allowed on the bed, even though the dogs are when we are not sleeping. My husband is hostile toward the cat, and I have confronted Tom about my suspicions that he is abusive toward Whiskers when I am not around. The cat now avoids him and will run upstairs when Tom gets home. He has denied it, but his actions when he thinks I am not looking make me disbelieve him. I received Whiskers as a kitten from my mother when my 5-month-old daughter passed away suddenly and I was in the depths of the darkest grief, desperately needing something to take care of. Whiskers means the world to me. To be frank, if Tom had acted this way toward Whiskers in the beginning, I would not have pursued a life with him.

I have told Tom how hurtful I find his treatment of Whiskers and reminded him of how important that silly cat is to me. Nothing seems to make a difference.

Why is it so hard for him to love, or just pretend to tolerate, and be kind to this part of my life that is so important to me? Am I asking too much? What should I do?

— Depressed and Confused

Dear Depressed and Confused: It sounds like Tom might be jealous of your close relationship with sweet Whiskers, and he is acting horribly because of it. If he treats your innocent 9-year-old cat this way, I hate to think how he would treat other things that are important to you. You are certainly not asking too much of Tom. In fact, you are not asking enough.

The beginning is always the honeymoon phase, and it sounds like Tom was on his best behavior and pretending to like the cat. Now that you are married and he is feeling more comfortable, his true colors are showing. I am sorry to say this, but those colors are ugly. The fact that the cat runs away from him, and that you suspect abuse, is very telling.

I would speak firmly to Tom and say that you believe that he is hurting Whiskers. Plus, there is nothing silly about a cat. This animal has brought you great comfort during some of the saddest days of your life. Now you owe it to Whiskers to provide him comfort and safety. How someone treats animals says a lot about how they would treat children and other people.

Tom needs counseling for his treatment of Whiskers. The fact that he changed his behavior is even worse. If he is unwilling to go to therapy and talk about his aggressive behavior, seriously consider grabbing Whiskers — and perhaps your other pets as well — and walking out the door. Thank you for writing, and I hope your next husband respects all living creatures as much as you do.

TODAY'S HOROSCOPE

Get a grip on your life and what's important to you. If you have a dream, follow your heart and find the path that will lead to happiness. If you are up-front about what you want, you won't regret it. It's time to venture in a direction that meets your expectations.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — Say yes to fun, love, exploring new avenues and finding what you want out of life. Don't put up with negativity or people who are holding you back.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — Don't share your feelings or plans. Avoid interference by carefully getting everything in place. Personal change is apparent.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — Compassion, understanding and being part of the solution rather than the problem will help you ward off negativity and people who are trying to lead you astray.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Finesse and charm will help you get things done your way. Changing the way you treat someone will have exceptional results.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — Be observant. Simplify your life and focus on following a tight budget. Set your goals and do what it takes to meet them.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) — You can be creative without overdoing it. A minimalist approach to life will help you flourish in ways you never imagined. Set your priorities. Romance is heightened.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Now's the time to act. Take care of your responsibilities and don't worry about what others do. Arguing won't solve anything, but it will slow you down and hold you back.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — If change is what you need, be the one to make it happen. If you hesitate, someone will make choices for you that are not in your interest. Personal growth is encouraged.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — You'll stand out if you step up and do what needs to be done. Be assertive and open about what you want to see happen. Be a leader and set a good example.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Do something that will boost your confidence. Discuss what you want with a partner or co-worker. Keep the peace at home and work.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Traveling, attending business meetings and exploring new possibilities will help you move forward. Digest the information you receive, make a choice and act with confidence. A chance to start anew is within reach.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Live within your means and stick to practical activities. If you overstep your limits, you will have to backtrack. Don't underestimate a challenger.

What is the opposite of the distaff side?

By Phillip Alder

All languages have words for male and female. Some of those words arise rarely, like distaff. That word refers to the female side of the equation. But what is the masculine equivalent?

In yesterday's column, I described a great defensive play by Jacqui Mitchell. To balance the books, as it were, here is an excellent piece of declarer-play by her husband, Victor Mitchell, who died in 1995. Victor was also a great player and universally popular.

North was Sam Stayman, who died in 1993. He and Mitchell won four national championships as partners. Stayman's three-diamond opening bid promised a decent hand in their methods. West probably doubled in case South was psyching at the vulnerability.

West led the heart eight: three, 10, jack. Mitchell played on diamonds, West winning the second round. If West had had a mirror, he would have cashed his heart ace. But not knowing that the heart king was now a singleton, West switched to the spade four.

If Mitchell had won East's jack with his queen, West, when in with the ace of clubs, would have had no option but to try to drop the heart king. So Mitchell set a trap. He won with the spade ace! Then he led a low club.

Suitably duped, West rushed in with the club ace and continued with the spade five. Imagine his surprise when Mitchell won the trick with the spade 10, and when the clubs broke 3-3, he claimed two overtricks for plus 750.

Apparently, the masculine equivalent of the distaff side is the spear side! Who knew?

Major US stock indexes veer broadly lower in choppy trading

NEW YORK (AP) — A day of choppy trading on Wall Street ended Monday with stocks broadly lower as the market extended its losing streak into a fourth week.

Technology stocks, consumer goods makers, health care companies and banks accounted for much of the selling, which accelerated in the last hour of trading, erasing modest gains from midday. Communication services stocks eked out a slight gain, bucking the broader market slide. Crude oil prices edged lower and bond yields rose.

The market is coming off a three-week skid following a mostly discouraging batch of economic data that stoked investors' worries that a slowdown in U.S. economic growth could worsen.

The combination of uncertainty over the costly trade war between the U.S. and China, and the impeachment inquiry drama unfolding in Washington, is likely to continue to drag on the economy and weigh on markets, said Tony Roth, chief investment officer at Wilmington Trust.

"And that's why the markets are trading water right now, waiting to see if another shoe drops," Roth said.

The S&P 500 fell 13.22 points, or 0.4%, at 2,938.79. The Dow Jones Industrial Average slid 95.70 points, or 0.4%, to 26,478.02. The Nasdaq dropped 26.18 points, or 0.3%, to 7,956.29.

Smaller-company stocks fared slightly better than the rest of the market. The Russell 2000 index slipped 2.91 points, or 0.2%, to 1,497.79.

Bond prices fell, pushing the yield on the 10-year Treasury rose to 1.56% from 1.51% late Friday.

The benchmark S&P 500 index began the day lower, picked up some gains around midday and then veered back into the red by late afternoon.

The wobbly day in the market reflects the cautious approach that investors are taking as they try to gauge how the economy and corporate profits will fare amid the lingering trade war and political uncertainty in Washington.

Last week, the S&P 500 posted its first back-to-back losses of 1% this year as surprisingly weak numbers in surveys of manufacturing and service industries showed the U.S.-China trade war is threatening U.S. economic growth.

Some of those fears were allayed on Friday when a government jobs report showed that employers are still adding jobs at a healthy clip and that the national unemployment rate dropped to a five-decade low.

Still, last week marked the third weekly loss in a row for the broader market as the trade war takes its toll on confidence. Markets have been whipsawed for months by the ups and downs in the dispute.

"Labor has held up fairly OK, but we're definitely decelerating from an economic standpoint, so corporate earnings may reflect that negatively," Roth said. "The biggest drivers of the market are going to be who controls policy in Washington and what the specifics are around the Chinese trade situation."

Envoys from Washington and Beijing are scheduled to meet later this week in their latest bid to put an end to the dispute that is stunting global economic growth and spooking the stock market.

Broadcom led the slide in technology stocks Monday, dropping 1.9%.

Beverage companies fell amid a sell-off in consumer product makers. Constellation Brands slid 2.6% and PepsiCo fell 1.4%. Coca-Cola lost 1.2%.

Several big drugmakers helped pull health care sector stocks lower. Abbott Laboratories gave up 1.2% and Merck & Co. slid 0.7%.

GE freezes pensions for 20,000 workers in bid to trim debt pile

NEW YORK (AP) — General Electric is freezing the pension plans of about 20,000 of its workers and offering pension buyouts to 100,000 former employees as it attempts to reduce its mountain of debt.

The industrial conglomerate has been selling off assets and streamlining its operations amid sagging profits and other setbacks in recent years. It has about $105.8 billion in overall debt, and whittling that down has become a priority for CEO Larry Culp.

The Boston company said Monday that its actions would trim its pension deficit by about $5 billion to $8 billion, and net debt by about $4 billion to $6 billion.

"Returning GE to a position of strength has required us to make several difficult decisions, and today's decision to freeze the pension is no exception," said Kevin Cox, chief human resources officer at GE, in a prepared statement. "We carefully weighed market trends and our strategic priority to improve our financial position with the impact to our employees."

GE closed its pension plan to new beneficiaries in 2012. Companies nationwide have been capping or freezing defined-benefit pension plans, which promise regular retirement payments for the remainder of a beneficiary's life. Many switched to 401k plans, which often include contributions from employers and employees but which do not guarantee a certain level of payments.

GE's pension actions should have been taken much sooner, but the company needed to first secure the funding from its portfolio sales so it could re-deploy those proceeds, said Deane Dray, managing director of RBC Capital Markets, in a note to investors.
